

Feb. - 1953

Suspect
The twin brothers are full of vim and vigor and when they put their heads and brawn together, they are capable of "wrecking the joint." Little sister, just old enough to toddle, upset a glass cabinet and suffered a cut on the forehead which bled profusely. One of the twins coming in and seeing the gaping wound said, accusingly, to the other; "Who did it, you?"

Michael to Timothy -

Apr. 1953

Sounds Reasonable
A half of our favorite twin act when asked if his mother cut his hair, replied, "No she scissors it."
— WEC —

*Michael's reply when asked what he was doing:
I'm scissorsing -*

THURSDAY, FEB. 19, 1953

Timmy Tillinghast is recovering from an attack of three-day measles.

FRIDAY, JULY 29, 1955

Hazards Of The Fourth
Our favorite twins couldn't enjoy the Independence Day fireworks display because they were afraid one of the aerial shots might hit God.

No Twins, No Column
One half of our twin team recently demanded hot dogs for dinner: "We can't afford hot dogs," replied the mother, who has a freezer full of home-killed beef, "you'll have to eat T-bone steak".

JUNE 1, 1956

Mike Tillinghast returned to school Monday after being at home for a week with measles. Little Sue is now ill with measles as Tim continues to improve.

Timmy Tillinghast who has been receiving treatment at Good Samaritan Hospital in Sandusky for several weeks is still a patient in the hospital but is showing improvement.

MAY 18, 1956

Timmy Tillinghast was brought to his home from Good Samaritan Hospital in Sandusky after receiving treatment there for several weeks. He is improving but is confined to his bed most of the time.